We could cut one out for A/C however it is marked on the back where to cut. It would be less likely to break if it is cut after delivery. You could make this work in a 67 by moving the wiper hole a little.

*Used plastic is not slick and smooth like new plastic. Some 0000 steel wool polishing marks (scratch look), minor runs, or other minor flaws may show at very close examination. Since the chrome look is .000005 millimeters thick, we apply 2 processes which hides most polishing marks. However a 3rd process could cause minor runs. That would be more noticeable than the polishing marks. Perfect is not an option on re-vacuum metallizing used parts.
